Dear King Members, Friends, and Family:

I hope you had a happy, socially distanced Thanksgiving holiday. I realize, for most of us, our celebrations looked a little different this year, with perhaps the most important part of the holiday missing – the ability to gather together.

As you are aware, COVID-19 is a virus which spreads even when people are asymptomatic and don't even suspect they might have it. Thank you to those of you who made the difficult decision to maintain vigilant social distancing this past holiday weekend, keeping your family and loved ones safe.

At King, three members and two employees tested positive for COVID-19 since Friday, and one member recovered. But, sadly, a member also passed away from COVID-19 over the weekend and we are all keeping that member and their loved ones in our thoughts. Currently there are 31 active positive cases of COVID-19 on campus (7 residents, 24 employees).

Please know that the King staff worked hard to make sure this Thanksgiving was a joyful one for our members and celebrated the day together. We look forward to once again celebrating together in the future.

Sincerely,

Tammy Servatius, Commandant
